THIRTY-SEVENTH YEAR

LIMA, OHIO, MONDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1922

PRICE THREE CENTS

FAST TIME REPUDIATED BY BINGHAM

City Official Calls Mix-up Due to Change Nuisance

COUNTY IS AGAINST PLAN

Two Times for City Causes Loss of Support

Daylight saving time for Lima was practically repudiated by city administration Monday when City Manager C. A. Bingham declared it to be unsatisfactory and a nuisance. This comment was given added weight as representative of the attitude adopted by city officials when Mayor Harold Cunningham and City Engineer J. H. Hamilton, found that with time changes each spring and fall and with annoyances resulting from a lack of universal adoption of the daylight saving standard after it is in force.

"Daylight saving time as it was used in Lima this summer was unsatisfactory," Bingham said. "To have two times in operation was a nuisance especially to the business which found it necessary to cater to persons using each of them. The change should use the same time."

Mayor Cunningham expressed the view that "we should set a standard time for the whole year and stick to it. Whether Eastern or central time is chosen is not material. There should be no time changes in the spring or fall to disrupt the regularity of business."

COMB BE UNIFORM
Commissioner Jones finds Eastern time amenable if adopted for the entire year. "There are certain lines of business which would be hampered by the Eastern time, however," he declared, "and to them as well as a large majority of people it would be unsatisfactory. Time changes twice a year are a nuisance."

"These statements from city officials come in the wake of a summer of repeatedly expressed dissatisfaction with time changes necessitated here because of the adoption of Eastern time for the summer months. While the city operated on Eastern time, the county operated on Central time."

The matter has been referred to the voters of the city to be definitely settled by them. They will vote on it at the November election.

COUNTY OFFICIALS

Should the daylight savings proposed be ratified by Lima voters November 7, will it mean that county officials will operate their offices on the new time next year?

Not so that any one can notice it. Each will be a law unto himself, and anyway some of them are to retire January 1.

But the power that controls the working hours of county workers is vested in the county commissioners. They are still of the opinion, Glen Walker, their clerk, stated Monday, that the county cannot adopt daylight savings under the present state laws, no matter what the city does.

Their attitude will, it carried out, lead to a similar condition as existed during the past summer when the city operated on eastern time and the county on central time, providing of course, that the fiscal carries at the election.

Other county officials are lukewarm on the matter.

John T. Connor, clerk of the courts, says it does not affect his office one way or the other, save that he would not welcome a situation similar to that during the past summer, when two standards of time were in effect.

WATKINS IS LESSON
"Last summer should be a lesson to the public," he said. "We should have uniform time."

"I haven't paid much attention to the matter," declared Sheriff C. W. Baxter. "Most people I hear talk are opposed to new time and I will vote against it myself."

Probate Judge J. H. Hamilton says he is neither for nor against, but wants a single standard, one way or the other.

"If the whole city runs on fast time," he said, "I'm in favor, but I wouldn't want to see last summer's mix-up repeated."

"I have always favored day light saving personally," asserted Judge H. H. Hughes, of appeals court, "but do not believe it should be forced on the working man."

"As far as the court is concerned, the advantages and disadvantages are about even. During the past summer, we were able to leave Lima at 2 a. m. and hold court in other counties, commencing at the same hour."

Prosecuting Attorney Eugene T. Thompson, said he might favor daylight savings if the whole county had it, but believed that too much confusion was created when clocks were operated on a double schedule.

VOTES OF HARDINGS REACH WRONG CITY

MARIETTA — There was a fluctuation of excitement in the office of the local election board and it was all caused by the arrival of a letter from the White House.

The excitement didn't last long when it was discovered that the letter contained the votes of President Harding and Secretary Christian. The letter was intended for election officials at Marion—not Marietta—and the letter was resealed and hurried off to the postoffice for its proper destination.

DEATHS START TRAFFIC CAMPAIGN

BODIES FOUND IN BATHROOM

CLEVELAND, (United Press)—With two dead and 24 hurt in Cleveland Sunday traffic smashes, Governor Davis, in Cleveland today, announced he will ask Attorney General Price to call a meeting of Ohio law directors to draft a model traffic ordinance for adoption and enforcement in the larger cities. Practical and constitutional traffic regulations for the smaller communities, will also be drafted, according to the Davis plan.

ALABAMA DUCHESS

The American wife of Marquis Curzon will soon change her title from marchioness to duchess according to reports that King George will advance her famous husband to a dukedom. The Marchioness Curzon is a native of Alabama, daughter of the late J. Munroe Hinds, American minister to Brazil.

"LIVING WAGE" IS DENIED BY BOARD

Labor Board Passes on Demand of Rail Men

CHICAGO — (United Press) —

Declaring that the "living wage" proposition of railroad unions was "just, but impractical," the railroad labor board today had flatly rejected the demand of the men that the "living wage" be made the basis for a new wage scale.

A majority opinion stated that if carried out, the theory "would wreck every railroad in the country, and it carried into other industries would result in economic ruin."

The statement was the formal decision on the ruling issued ten days ago, granting a two-cent an hour increase in the minimum wage of maintenance of way employees.

The decision was also in the nature of a reply to A. O. Wharton, labor member of the board, who is a dissenting opinion advocated recognition of a "living wage."

The living wage as defined by railroad representatives, was one which would support a family of five, it was claimed that the lowest "living wage" for common labor should range from 72 to 75 cents an hour. Under the recent increase the board granted a wage scale to maintenance men ranging from 25 to 37 cents an hour. The majority opinion explained that the granting of a living wage would bring the annual railroad payroll up to $5,359,445,993. This would make the total expenses approximately $7,804,871,773 a year, while the total revenues average about $5,563,222,215. Thus, the railroads would face an annual deficit of more than $2,000,000,000.

The decision also challenged statements of the unions that the average family consisted of five.

FARMER IS SLAIN

Accused Neighbor Jailed at West Union, Ohio

GEORGETOWN, Ohio — (Associated Press) —

George Webb, 48, a farmer of Seaman, 20 miles from here was shot and instantly killed today while sawing wood near a private roadway which adjoins the farms of Robert Davis and Thomas Blake. Davis is under arrest at West Union, the county seat, charged with murder.

According to Sheriff Pettit, Davis claimed exclusive use of the roadway. Webb is alleged to have left a saw on the roadway Saturday and Davis returning today to see if Webb had removed the saw, encountered Webb. A quarrel is alleged to have ensued, during which Davis is said to have shot Webb.

After the shooting, Davis came to West Union with a load of wood and surrendered to Sheriff Pettit. He is lodged in the county jail at West Union with a charge of murder against him, pending an investigation by county officials.

Webb was married and had two children. Davis who is 36 years old is also married and has one child.

The fatality of the day Nicholas Bardar, Jr. He was killed as he stooped to pick up a handful of coins which some boys had taken from him and hurled into the street.

BOY IS KILLED
As the dead boy was being taken home, his mother, Mrs. Antonia Bardar, was giving birth to another boy. She was not told of the death of her son until some hours later.

Then she said she will name the latest arrival Nicholas, Jr., after the dead son.

A man who gave the name of Anthony Holloran, 26, was booked on a manslaughter charge after the accident.

Frank Salen, 7, injured Saturday, died in Lakeside Hospital.

The safety drive endorsed by Davis is to include legal representatives from Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus, Dayton, Akron, Youngstown and Canton. The first meeting is planned for Columbus.

The proposed legislation would cover these points:

Speed: Elimination from the state law of lower limitations than those adopted by the municipalities and a provision for workhouse sentences for violations.

Backing, stopping, and turning: Uniform regulations on these points.

Lights: When required, glare.

Rules of the road: Passing to the right, overtaking street cars and other vehicles.

"Ordinances should be uniform in every Ohio city," said Davis. "National regulations would be preferable, for many of the drivers using our streets are not familiar with local rules. But it will be a big step forward if the larger cities of Ohio can agree upon ordinances which are exactly the same except for local parking sites."

Yonkers, N. Y., Man and Bride of Month Slain

NO TRACE OF VIOLENCE

Suicide Theory, However, is Scouted by Coroner

NEW YORK — (United Press) — Mysterious death of Daniel Cohen, 23, draftsman, and his bride of a month, whose nude bodies were found in a bathroom without a trace of violence or poison, was probed by police and detectives today.

Frederick Snowden, coroner, scouted the police theory of suicide and said he believed a double murder had been committed. He said there would be no inquest today as he was just beginning his investigation.

Cohen's body was found on the bathroom floor of the couple's home in Yonkers. The only mark on his body was a slight abrasion on one hand. Mrs. Cohen lay in the bathtub, her body submerged in water.

APARTMENT LOCKED
Neither the police nor coroner could find any traces of gas or electrocution, they said. The apartment was locked.

The bodies were discovered last night when Mrs. D. R. Cohen, mother of the bridegroom, found Sunday morning's milk bottle outside the door and persuaded a neighbor to break in the apartment.

She told authorities that the young couple had been extremely happy and had betrayed no cause for suicide.

Snowden said it was practically impossible that Cohen could have killed his wife and then himself, as his body had all the appearance of having been carefully arranged on the floor.

The coroner declared he believed Mrs. Cohen had been held under water until she drowned.

The death of Cohen and his wife was unexplained following an autopsy today.

Dr. Albertson Bennett and Dr. David Ramsey reported to Coroner Snowden that the examination threw no light on the cause of death. The question of whether they were murdered, or killed one another in a strange suicide pact, remains unsolved.

It is possible that if they were murdered, they were poisoned by means of gas generated from powder sprinkled on the gas stove, in which the first was burning, according to one theory. This would account for the copious bleeding from the nose which accompanied death in each case.

There were indications of slight inflammation in the stomachs, probably due to a poison.

SCHOOL WRECKED BY DYNAMITE

New Building at Mayfield, Ohio, Blown up

MAYFIELD, Ohio — (United Press) — Two dynamite blasts that wrecked the new $85,000 grade school building here late Sunday night were being investigated today by town authorities and deputy sheriffs.

The explosions coming about two minutes apart, rocked buildings and broke window glasses throughout the town.

The new building, which was to have been ready for occupancy January 1, was almost completely wrecked.

One wing was torn off, walls and foundations were shattered, a $4,000 boiler was blown to bits and a part of the road was caved in.

When the first blast hit the village was thrown into confusion. At the second explosion a shower of broken glass tinkled in the pavement.

There has been some labor trouble in connection with building of the new school. At one time both union and non-union men were employed on the job. Authorities are investigating those facts as a possible motive for the dynamiting.

The school was a two-story four-room structure designed to house 250 children.

COUPLE POISONED

Pennsylvania Man, Wife Stricken After Eating Cake

PHILADELPHIA — (Associated Press) — Authorities today were still seeking a clue to the sender of the poisoned cake which killed W. W. Sterrett of Devon, an accountant, and resulted in an illness which may cost the life of Mrs. Sterrett.

Dr. Herbert A. Bostock, coroner's physician of Montgomery-co., who conducted a postmortem examination of Sterrett, declared his belief that two poisons cleverly mixed by an expert were placed in the icing of the cake sent to the Sterretts.

Investigators so far have made no apparent progress in determining who sent the cake and what the motive was.

Woman, Ill, In Auto Crash

MRS. HALL DEFIED BY WITNESS

Denial That She Saw Double Murder Challenged

GRAND JURY READY TO ACT

Case May be Put up to Body Today

(By GERALD P. OVERTON)

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — The grand jury convened at Somerville today, ready to receive a request from Prosecutor Mott for indictments in the Hall-Mills murder case.

The prosecutor gave no indication of what move he would make. Further delay, however, was considered likely, in view of the following overnight developments:

1.—Challenge of Mrs. Jane Gibson to a prominent New Brunswick woman to prove the latter did not witness the murder.

2.—Reports that a new witness who heard Mrs. Mills' dying screams had been discovered.

3.—Discovery of two cartridges, discharged, near the spot where the bodies were found.

4.—Alleged attempt by a negro to sell Dr. Hall's watch, which has been missing since the tragedy.

STILL UNDER GUARD
Mrs. Gibson's challenge was issued after Mrs. Frances Noel Hall, widow of the doctor, had issued a purported statement thru friends of her family, saying she knew nothing of the slaying of her husband and Mrs. Mills.

The "pig ranch woman" who claimed to have witnessed the dual tragedy, defied Mrs. Hall to face her and deny that she (Mrs. Hall) did not witness the slayings.

Mrs. Gibson today remained in her home guarded against interviews by state troopers and her son, known as "Dumb Willie" who allowed:

"Maybe I ain't so dumb."

CARTRIDGES FOUND
Interest, but not so much important, was placed upon reported finding of two unexploded cartridges at the edge of the now much trampled spot under the crumpled tree where the bodies were found. They were said to be of the same calibre of the exploded shells found in the pastor's clothing and near the bodies.

Mrs. Gibson declared her son would verify that she made a second trip out of the house the night of the murders. It was on this trip that she claims to have seen a woman kneeling and tearfully praying over the bodies. She said she did not disclose this second trip the first time she visited the prosecutors because "they didn't ask me for details."

A story told by Mr. and Mrs. Norman R. Tingle, of Easton-av will be used to substantiate Mrs. Gibson's assertions, it was learned from authorities.

Tingle said he and his wife were on the porch of their home the night of September 14.

"It was 9 o'clock" said Tingle. "The moon was clear. Twenty minutes later we saw a shooting star. I was laid it meant death."

"I laughed at her superstition. 'Then we heard sounds like shooting. We thought it backfire from an automobile at first, but we now believe they were shots.'"

TWO MEN SHOT IN MOB BATTLE

"The True Blue" Attempts to Kidnap Oklahoma Constable

HENRYETTA, Okla. — (Associated Press) — Reece Adkins of Dewar, Okla., was shot to death and Thomas Bogus, Spelter City constable, was wounded probably fatally at Spelter City, near here, last night when a band of masked men of which Adkins was a member, called Bogus from a motion picture theatre and attempted to kidnap him a motor car.

Bogus drew a pistol and began firing when the party attempted to entice him into a motor car, police said. They reported he admitted killing Adkins.

Bogus is near death at a local hospital.

Other members of the masked party may have been wounded, according to Constable George Davis who emptied his pistol at the machine as they drove away.

TORN NOTE MAY SOLVE DEATHS

Letter Held as Clue to Montana Murder, Suicide

MOTHER INVESTIGATES CASE

Doesn't Believe Daughter Killed Rector and Herself

HAYRE, Mont. — (Associated Press) — While Mrs. Christler today was on an eastbound train, accompanying the body of her slain husband, Rev. Leonard J. Christler, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church and known as the "bishop of all outposts" to Watertown, N. Y., Mrs. Joseph Pyle mother of Mrs. Margaret Carleton whose body was found beside that of Christler, is attempting to prove that her daughter did not commit murder and suicide.

A coroner's jury brought in a verdict yesterday stating that Mrs. Carleton killed Rev. Christler and then shot herself. The tragedy occurred early Friday morning.

She is the owner of the "I do not believe Margaret did it," said Mrs. Pyle shortly after her arrival in Hayre. "I shall not be satisfied until I find who owned the gun."

Her reference was to a .38 calibre revolver in the hand of Mrs. Carleton when the bodies were found. A small .22 calibre revolver she customarily carried was found in Mrs. Carleton's handbag.

Mrs. Pyle is now engaged in pleading for the life of a torn letter found in the waste basket in her daughter's room and which she declares is in Mr. Christler's handwriting. That Mrs. Carleton had an infatuation for the minister is admitted by Mrs. Pyle.

LIGHT TURNED ON PAIR'S ROMANCE

HAYRE, Mont. — (Special) — Having today was recovering from the shock of the double tragedy, a comment on the spectacular career of the Rev. Mr. Christler, it was recalled that his defiance of the conventions and his contempt for the orthodox precedents which usually mark the mental processes of the minister were largely responsible for his becoming a figure nationally known.

NOVILIST GAVE HIM TITLE — Stewart Edward White, the novelist, adapted the rector to a character in a western story and gave him the title of "Bishop of All Outdoors." His brilliant mind and tongue, coupled with a charm of manner and rare self assurance added to his prestige.

It was this vivid personality that about three years ago met the romantic beauty, Mrs. Margaret Carleton. A close friendship sprang up between the Christler and Carleton families when Mr. and Mrs. Carleton moved to Hayre from Helena where Mrs. Carleton several years before had divorced her first husband, Charles Lotz, as a consequence of an affair with a minister there. Soon after his arrival in Hayre, Carleton was made district judge by appointment.

Long walks into the country became a common pastime with the rector and Mrs. Carleton's diminutive wife. She was only 5 feet tall and considered one of the most beautiful women in the northwest.

WINS ANOTHER SORRIQUET

Gossip began to link their names, and a complaint was filed with Bishop Frederick Faber of the Montana diocese, as an aftermath of an incident in the hills of which two women parishioners claimed to have knowledge. Presently to the title "Bishop of All Outdoors" was added "The Shepherd of the Hills."

Comment upon the friendship continued until an investigation was made by the bishop. The rector was exonerated. Parishioners said that when the stenographer who took down the testimony at the hearing typed the record she found two pages of vital testimony unaccountably missing.

Despite the exoneration, the "bishop's" relations with Mrs. Carleton continued to keep the village tongues wagging, and St. Mark's congregation began to diminish. The rector's study in the church became a traveling place and there is complete proof of their meetings in other cities.

here to take charge of the body of his wife, Mrs. Margaret Carleton. Judge Carleton was on a motor trip to the Imperial Valley, California, and Lower California when word reached his relatives here of the death of his wife and the Rev. Mr. and J. Christler at Hayre.

LETTERS MADE PUBLIC

The letter said to be from Mr. Carleton, dated in California, August 25, says in part:

"I have been thinking a great deal lately that it is not fair that you should have any legal restraint upon you. There is absolutely no chance for happiness for you as my wife. There are lots of good successful men who would make you happy. Probably you have met one ere this. If this is so, I am mighty happy and will do all I can to fix things so that you can be free to marry."

Attached to this letter was one said to be in the handwriting of Rev. Christler. In part it says: "Am amazed at Frank's attitude. Why not be honest with ourselves. His beginning of honesty is to first pay the debt he contracted while you two were partners, then talk about a move to the next step, why back in such a manner what he owes your mother and elsewhere. The liability of both of you—and pack all the burdens of debt on your heart and shoulders. "Anyhow I want to see you clean the slate at Hayre. Am coming to help."

YODER LANDS IN JAIL UNTIL BILL IS PAID

A bill for board, which Fred Yoder, 456 N. Elizabeth-st., neglected to pay Mrs. Daisy Winegardner, landed him in the clutches of the law early Sunday. Yoder was arrested at his lodgings by Deputy Sheriffs Clarence Fraunfelder and Loyal Baxter, and lodged in jail. Monday he obtained his freedom by paying $14 owed to Mrs. Winegardner, plus the costs in the matter.

BIG CROPS BELIEVED ANSWER TO PRAYER

NEW ENGLAND, N. D. — The wheels of time turned backward 300 years here yesterday when an entire village forgot the dizzy past of the modern world and knelt as did their Puritan fathers to give thanks for a bountiful harvest.

For four years farmers of this community watched the crops wither and die. Last spring the community joined in a common prayer for a more successful season. Yesterday the people gathered again to give thanks to the Divinity who, they believe, heard and granted their prayer.

Pastors of the Catholic, Congregational and Lutheran churches led the thanksgiving service which was held in a school gymnasium. Six hundred farmers and their households who "are not too busy to believe in modern day miracles" turned their faces upward in the old hymn of harvest and thanksgiving "Come, Ye Thankful People."

KANSAS PLANS TO EXPEL KU KLUX

War is Declared on Organization By Governor

COURT ACTION PREPARED

Texas and Oklahoma Expected to Join in Move

(BY J. E. BEAMAN)

KANSAS CITY, (United Press) — The Ku Klux Klan stands with its back to the wall in Kansas today. The machinery of the state government has started into action against the mystery enshrouded organization.

Klan councils throught the state were reported to have been called into session in orders issued today to formulate plans for a fight for existence.

Governor Henry J. Allen, who on the eve of an election, declared war on the Klan, was in western Kansas today, carrying his appeal to the people to rid the state of the white caps.

COURT ACTION PLANNED

At Topeka, the capital, Attorney General Hopkins was in private conference with state executives, preparatory to drafting injunctions drastically curbing operations of the Klan.

It was reported from a reliable source, that one of these injunctions would prevent further enlistment of Klansmen until action against the organization as a whole, could be brought to court.

Action to expel from Kansas every official of the Klan is already under way. Governor Allen himself admitted before leaving for the western part of the state.

Kansas Klan officials could not be reached by newspaper men today. It was reported that they were gathering for conferences at an unnamed town.

OTHER STATES MAY ACT

Telegraphic inquiries from leaders of the anti-Klan fight in Texas, which centers around the candidacy of Earl B. Mayfield for the United States senate, were pouring in to Topeka. Indications were that if the crusade against the organization acquired the anticipated momentum in Kansas, it will spread thru Texas and Oklahoma without delay.

Joint action by officials of the states or at least the element opposed to the Ku Klux Klan, was predicted today at Topeka.

A series of raids, kidnappings and forcings, attributed by Governor Allen's investigator to the Ku Klux Klan, lead to his unprecedented step in plugging a state against a secret organization.

The whipping of Mayor Schlerman, of Liberty, Kansas, some days ago, was, according to Allen and Hopkins, the final outrage and one that "necessitated prompt and drastic action."

While Allen was making his initial speech against the Klan Saturday night at Coffeyville, 14,000 Klansmen were crowding every inch of space in convention hall to hear anti-Catholic speakers.

These included Gilbert O. Nations, of Washington, D. C., editor of "The Protestant" and William Parker, of Aurora, Mo., publisher of "The New Menace."

The Tom Shannon-Joe Pendergast political organization, which has headed Democratic politics in Kansas City, was scathingly denounced by the speakers. No reference was made to the Allen campaign across the line in Kansas although it was known in advance that Allen was on the same night opening a strenuous fight on the Klan.

Wood Chopping Leads to Court

Chopping indulged in before day-light by Tom Fox, city water works employee, 931 S. Main-st annoyed T. L. Arnold, a neighbor, and led indirectly to Fox's arrest Monday.

Each morning Fox was aroused by sound of chopping as Fox prepared a day's supply of fuel for the kitchen range, Arnold reports.

"Why don't you split wood in the day time?" Arnold inquired from his bed room window. "I can't sleep."

"Why don't you mind your own business," Fox is alleged to have retorted. Threats and denunciations it is said, were hurled back and forth.

Monday Fox was arrested by William Cherry, detective, charged with assault and arraigned before Justice E. M. Botkin. He pleaded not guilty and was released on $50 bond. Mrs. Eunice Arnold, signed the complaint charging at attack on her husband.

STATE'S CASE IN PHILLIPS TRIAL NEARING PROBE

LOS ANGELES — The state today expected to close its case in the trial of Mrs. Clara Phillips, charged with beating Mrs. A. Meadows to death with a hammer.

"Imaginary jealousy" over Mrs. Phillips' husband, has been advanced as the cause of the killing. Exceptionally long cross-examination of Peggy Caffee, chorus girl, "eye witness" to the murder, was declared the only thing that would drag out the state's side. After she testifies further this morning, the prosecution expects to call about ten additional witnesses mostly employees of a hotel, to tell that Clara stayed there the night of the crime.

TEXAS OFFICIALS FACE CONTEMPT CHARGES

DALLAS, Tex. — A motion, citing Attorney General W. A. Keating and Secretary of State S. L. Staples, for contempt of court, was filed in the fifth district court of civil appeals here today.

The contempt action was based upon the certification by Staples of the man of Earl B. Mayfield as the Democratic nominee for the United States senate.

Staples acted upon the advice of Keating, it is said.

Mayfield is opposed by the anti-Ku Klux Klan fight in Texas.

FAILS TO APPEAR FOR ARRAIGNMENT, IS SOUGHT

Richard M. Funk, 226 N. Elizabeth-st., arrested Sunday on a charge of disorderly conduct by assault, failed to appear in police court Monday. He was ordered arrested and brought in.

Bondsmen for Funk notified the court that he had not reported for work and a notice was sent to surrounding cities. The complaining witness against Funk is Richard Barrington, 13, 942 Brice-av, who alleges that Funk attempted to lunge into an alley at the corner of North and Pierce-sts.

HER RHEUMATISM HAS ENTIRELY DISAPPEARED

The successful treatment of rheumatism by taking Tanase is one of the outstanding features of that remarkable medicine. Thousands of people everywhere have testified that it has brought them complete relief from this torturous disease.

Mrs. M. Hickey, of 1313 Milburn Ave., Toledo, says: "For seven years I was in a very weak, run-down condition, but my worst trouble was rheumatism which was so bad I could hardly walk. Tanase built up my whole system wonderfully and I hardly notice any rheumatic pains any more. In fact, I feel better than I have in years."

When the digestive system, liver and kidneys are not working properly, uric acid and other impurities accumulate in the muscles and joints, causing rheumatism. Tanase quickly overcomes this condition by enabling the vital organs to perform their functions properly. Get a bottle today, at any good druggist. — Adv.

Women of some 50 nations now whiten teeth in this way

Do you know that millions of people, all the world over, are now cleaning teeth in a new way? One result is whiter, prettier teeth. You see them everywhere today.

If you don't know that method, we urge you to make this delightful test. See what it means to you.

Teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it now. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy costs. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

These most tooth troubles are now traced to film, which no ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat. So, under old methods, tooth troubles constantly increased, and beautiful teeth were less often seen than today.

Two combatants now Dental science, after long research, found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring. Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants were embodied in it. Now this Pepsodent has come into world-wide use, largely by dental advice.

Other new effects These results were found to be essential, and Pepsodent brings them. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits, for they may ferment and form acids. Thus every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents. And these combined effects are fast creating a new dental era.

You'll quickly see These benefits are quickly seen and felt. One week will convince you that Pepsodent does what nothing else has done. The results will amaze and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. You will soon realize that this method is important, both to you and yours. And, when you know that, you will not return to ineffective ways. Cut out the coupon now.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

VOTERS of the city will be called upon to use common sense at the polls in municipal balloting, one week from tomorrow. We say common sense as distinguished between selfishness and prejudice. The use of this seldom used policy will come to city voters on bond issues and proposed increases in tax levies. Taxation is the great bugaboo of all communities, state or city. Because taxation is too often abused.

In the proposals on the ballots of next Tuesday, there is no sign of abuse. The city badly needs increased revenue; must have it, or citizens individually will suffer many ills. We can't have benefits without paying for them. We can't be given proper police, fire and health protection out of the air. It must come from taxation. We voted to throw out the saloons and junk the $65,000 they paid the city for licenses. We should now vote to replace that $65,000 out of our own pockets.

The schools must expand as the city expands. The city will reach around 60,000 population before our schools can build additional housing spaces for the additional kiddies which come from increased population. The schools need both the bonds and the two mill levy.

These are facts, indisputable facts. The Lima News fears the voters will heedlessly, even premeditatedly follow their usual bent, of voting against increased taxation. Voters should be broad enough, fair enough, honest enough to realize that even a City Commission, healer of all municipal ills, cannot practice government without funds. There are no funds even now to keep lighted our boulevard ornaments for which we paid $75 the post. To reiterate, we voted for a city commission over the old form. Do we expect that city commission to operate without money?

After much investigation, The Lima News believes the bond issue and increased levy are not only needed, but just. At the same time we feel they will be hopelessly defeated unless voters forget selfishness and prejudice. All we can ask is careful, studious thought. In the knowledge that the old town and our schools must go backward, if not forward.

YOUR DUTY AS A VOTER

ONLY one more week intervenes until election day. If you, man or woman, have registered as required by law affecting voters in this city it is your duty to go to the polls on Tuesday, November 7, and express your preference of the candidates for office, for United States Senator, Governor, a full complement of state officers, members of the supreme court, the court of appeals and county officers.

Likewise, it is your duty to indicate your position on measures that will be up for decision, such as bond issues, tax amendment, daylight saving, the beer and wine amendment and such other propositions as may be submitted. Those who enjoy the right of franchise and who fail to exercise it, unconsciously contribute to government by the minority.

If a goodly percentage of the citizenry who are eligible to participate in elections fail to exercise that right and duty, it follows that men are elected or defeated and that measures are accepted or rejected by a minority of the people. Thus the principle of majority rule in government is defeated by the very neglect and indifference of the people themselves.

It is not only a high privilege, but a duty as well, for every voter to express his will in the ballot on men and measures. Indifference in this essential matter is a menace to free and representative government, the form under which we live, and is a contribution to minority rather than to majority rule, as intended by the constitution.

REINCARNATION

ISADORA DUNCAN says she and her husband, Serge Yessenin, loved each other in a previous existence 12,000 years ago.

"Together we played on the banks of the Nile. I was a dancing girl and he was a soldier. I recognized him when I saw him in Russia."

A beautiful belief, whether you agree with her or not. The theory of reincarnation is one of the avenues thru which humanity seeks to dodge death, the universally dreaded.

LABOR

YOU read that labor may come into power, politically, in Great Britain. If not this year, it is inevitable later.

In 1900 the British Labor Party

had a membership of only 375,931. Steady growth has made the figure pass 4,000,000.

On a population basis, this would correspond to about 10,000,000 organized labor votes in our country.

After wandering far, the architecture of flying machines thus gets back to copying the bird. The return is logical, for the bird is the perfect flyer. And man cannot improve on nature.

COMPENSATION

The singing and the dancing,
The laughter and the fun,
The wooing and romancing
Are over soon, and done.
The flirting and the courting,
The frolicking and play,
The revel and the sporting
Endure but for a day.

In time the blood grows colder,
In time the eyes grow dim,
And as we're waxing older
We live with waning vim.
Youth and its magic passes,
And by the frost of years

Is blighted, like the grasses,
When winter's snow appears.

Aye all the merry clamor
And all the music sweet,
The spell of youth, the glamor,
Pass on with flying feet;
The feasting and the folly
Are glories swiftly past;
But oh, they make life jolly,
The little while they last!

THAT FAT FEELING

For a long time I have wondered what ailed so many young women who wrote me such pleasant letters opening their hearts to me and entrusting their secrets to my keeping.

So many of them modestly mentioned their three main dimensions, height, weight and age, which indicated practically perfect figures, and yet they yearned to reduce. Really it had become a veritable epidemic, this determination on the part of girls to grow thin, and it worried me a great deal. I feared it was a decadent tendency of the sex. I'm a pessimistic person about all such matters. To my mind the women had lost their heads—that is, their hair, and having made such a screaming success in that particular mutilation they were bound and determined to sacrifice any other feminine charms they might happen to find themselves possessed of. So I made up my mind to discourage this deplorable tendency all I could; at any rate I meant to lend no hand to it. If the women were going to make animated clothesracks of themselves they needn't look to me for any counsel or aid. So for quite a spell now I have lugubrously withheld all information or advice regarding reduction from querists whose three main dimensions have not clearly warranted an effort to reduce. I fear this practice has alienated the affections of many feminine readers or even won their animosity.

I find, now that I have made this new discovery, that I have missed my cue in dealing with most of these more or less perfect ladies who craved to make themselves imperfect. I am not repelling their appeals so coldly any more, but on the contrary I am appealing to these very misguided girls to use a better remedy than reduction is for what ails them. Nowadays when any lady of reasonably passable dimensions writes that she must reduce I endeavor to bring a bit of blarney into the case and offer her a more attractive plaything to take her mind off from the fool notion of reducing. The very important discovery I have made in this, that altho some folks are unquestionably, egregiously fat, there are a surprising number who are not obese at all, not overweight, but who do have that fat feeling, and unless something is done to relieve the feeling many of them are in real danger of reducing—an eventually which is most undesirable not only for the sake of good looks but for health's sake.

That fat feeling is a mighty sad feeling for anybody to have, and I certainly can sympathize with the victim, even tho he be only a man. It must be terrible for a woman. I am exceedingly chary with sympathy; that fat feeling and premature baldness are about the only afflictions of men that excite my sympathy; several other things in women, and everything unpleasant in children can harrow my feelings.

But there is no good excuse for having that fat feeling. Any one who is not an invalid may cure it in the privacy of home, by devoting about 18 minutes a day to an intensive study of the New Brady Symphony. And it's almost as cheap as air, just a simple request properly chaperoned by the indispensable stamped, self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
My child is left handed. Is it advisable to make him use the right hand for writing and other things?—Mrs. G. F. G.

Answer—Four per cent of children are naturally left handed. Many cases of stuttering have occurred when left handed children were forced to use the right hand for writing. There is no good reason for attempting to force the change to right handedness in a left handed child and in my judgment it is injurious to the child's nervous stability to do so.

The streets again luminescent. So, it was a safe bet Mayor Brud could make electricity without coal. That man is a genius, altho, he plays a rotten midiron. So, home to a cold repeat. Of peanut butter sandwiches and pickled beets. And to my noble bed.

FORD QUALIFYING FOR PRESIDENCY

May Become Formidable Factor in Race, Forbes Says

UNDECIDED AS TO PARTY

Doesn't Know Whether He's Democrat or Republican

(BY E. C. FORBES)

CHICAGO (Special) — Here's a funny one about Ford: Henry, they tell you in Detroit, is quite boyish, not to say childish, in many respects.

Well, annoyed by other cars passing the silver so easily and so often the father of the silver conceived the notion of installing a racer machine in one of his cars and then sailing forth to provoke other drivers into trying to pass him. Henry, 'tis said, acted with his disguised racer much as drivers of trotting horses do on a broad boulevard when they want to pick up a race.

His special delight is said to be to incite the owner of some very high priced car into attempting to shoot him out of the way and then to step on the gas of his own quick-as-the-wind racer and, with a merry "ha ha" like a flash of lightning pass his annoyed and astonished speed rival.

Ford's biggest ambition is to be president of the United States.

That's the emphatic declaration made by men who ought to know. One hears on all sides that money is already going out from Detroit to all parts of the country to organize "Ford for President Clubs." The far west is receiving first attention, but the funny part of it is that Henry still doesn't know whether he is a Democrat or a Republican. He does know, however, some of the answers to the questions he tripped up on so lately during his famous race in court. He now knows when the war of the revolution was fought. In this and in other ways, 'tis said, Henry is qualifying for the presidency.

Of course, business men and others may laugh at and ridicule the idea of Ford seeking the presidency, seeing how grossly ignorant he is of history and everything else except the making of cheap and good motor vehicles. Nevertheless, if Henry does not change his mind and if he goes after the presidency in earnest, he will unquestionably become a formidable factor.

Altho Ford's running for the presidency may strike most people as a joke, it may well turn out to be no joke.

I vivid the prospect of staying a night at Jackson, Mich., with some one saying as I wasn't quite sure of the kind of hotel accommodations I might have there. I was astounded, however, at the excellence of the city club of Jackson, where I spent the night. I was equipped and appointed would do credit to any first class club in New York, Chicago, Boston, San Francisco or any other large city.

It was peculiarly gratifying, too, to note the friendliness and cordiality existing among the members. It was manifest that in this town the men of affairs take time to spare, take time to be friendly, take time to be human.

Incidentally, I was told there is now practically no unemployment in this city and that, with the exception of one rather important industry, all the local factories are doing quite well.

"Do you see that big mill over there?" Jacob Kindelberger asked me, when I reached Kalamazoo.

"You don't know it, but you were the fellow responsible for the building of that plant."

"How so?" I asked him.

"I decided to build that mill one evening after reading an article you once wrote about John Hays Hammond, the famous engineer."

Mr. Kindelberger, who is the founder and head of the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Company, is today building a much bigger paper mill. The new mill will cost close to three million dollars. It will be the best and biggest structure of its kind in the world. Imagine, one machine alone, will cost $210,000.

Mr. Kindelberger, who is today regarded as the leading and most public spirited citizen of Kalamazoo and whose book paper, writing paper and other expensive papers are known all over the world, started handling rags in a paper mill, when he was only ten years of age. When fifteen, he could scarcely read nor write. While attending a church meeting, he suddenly conceived big ambitions. He would start schooling himself and then put himself thru college. And he did.

It is only about ten years since he started his first puny mill at Kalamazoo. Today, it turns out more dollars worth of paper than any other plant there and his new mill will triple his capacity.

Some time ago he spent $50,000 in building and equipping a community house. I have visited many company and community club houses but I have never seen a more attractive one than this. It caters to all classes and all sizes of people, from the little children up. In view of his own early handicap, I think the lack of education, Mr. Kindelberger takes special pains to afford educational facilities to his people, starting with sewing and similar classes for little girls and carpentry and other classes for young boys.

At the close of a luncheon, organized by the Chamber of Commerce and attended by representatives from every organization in the city a man came up to Mr. Kindelberger and remarked to him, "The way the people here brought down the house when Forbes mentioned your name is the kind of monument I would like to receive."

Like many busy men Mr. Kindelberger finds lots of time for civic and philanthropic activities.

If anything, most business men in the middle west strike me as being a trifle over-optimistic.

ITALY IS TAKEN BY FASCISTI

Government Handed Over to Rebel Party by King

NEW CABINET IN MAKING

Change Opposed by Monarchistic Members of Parliament

(BY HENRY WOOD)

ROME, (United Press) — Italy today had bowed to the Fascisti, the rebel party, and Benito Mussolini busied himself forming a cabinet.

The demand of Mussolini, leader of the Fascisti, that complete control of the government be handed over to his organization, was met by King Victor Emmanuel, when Mussolini was asked to form a ministry. Back of Mussolini's demand was his army of 800,000 adherents, ready to act if the government was not handed over peacefully.

The Fascisti leader refused to accept a compromise. His invitation to form a ministry only came after he had refused point blank to participate in any cabinet headed by former Premier Salandra.

Mussolini was expected in Rome today. He has left Milan, where he has been in conference with leaders of his party. According to reliable information the new premier stopped off at Lake Garda to have an audience with Gabriello d'Annunzio, Italy's poet airman. This was taken to mean that the hero of Fiume may be a power in Italian politics.

OPPOSED BY PARLIAMENT — The Fascisti will rule Italy without the consent of Parliament, the majority of whose members are Socialists and bitterly opposed to the strong monarchistic tendencies of Mussolini. It is believed that parliament will be dissolved on November 7, when it convenes and that Mussolini will appeal to the country for support.

The House in Rome has been closed until November 6. The Fascisti took over most of the opposition newspapers. The fort overlooking Rome, which had been seized by the nationalists, was turned over to the military after Mussolini had been invited to become premier.

The coup of the Fascisti, who had concentrated at several points in Italy and were prepared to fight their way into power, was marked with only a few disorders.

SIX KILLED — At Cremona, six Fascisti were killed by police, when the "black shirts" attempted to take over the government. One man was killed in Rome yesterday afternoon in a conflict between the Fascisti and Police. From Piacenza comes reports that two members of the military police were killed and four Fascisti wounded.

The casualties were considered very light considering the scope of the upheaval which had every aspect of a revolution.

A sensation was caused when it was learned that Mussolini plans to someone coined a very capable young word. It is "sublimous," having its application to anything that approaches both the ridiculous and the sublime. It was applied to the scene which shows Charlie Murray, the noted comedian, albeit without grotesque make-up, proposing to beautiful Ethel Grey Terry. It is one of the scenes in Mack Sennett's six-reel comedy melodrama, "The Crossroads of New York." Just how sul'ime and how ridiculous this scene really is, cannot be described on paper, for "The Crossroads of New York" really is a burlesque on melodrama that grips and thrills at the same time it convulses with laughter.

Just how "sublimous" will be the new Lima-made picture, "The Crossroads of Lima," which The News is going to produce as a "take-off" on the Sennett picture, will depend upon the Charlie Murrrays, Billy Bevans, Eddie Gribbons, Robert Cairns, Herbert Standings, Don Farley, Mildred Jones, Ethel Grey Terry and Katherine McGuire will find parts for the screen tale that will be filmed at "The Crossroads of Lima."

Those who wish to take part in this picture are invited to appear for screen tests before the casting director at the Sigma Theatre at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday. The completed picture will be shown at the Sigma Theatre in connection with "The Crossroads of New York" and later will be sent to Mack Sennett for his inspection.

Many excellent suggestions as to what shall be incorporated in this local talent picture, have been received and any that are used will be acknowledged in the picture and credit given the authors. Send in your suggestions now. Make them brief, remembering that there will not be more than a half dozen scenes in "The Crossroads of Lima" and that they must be in by Tuesday evening to be considered. DELPHOS FREE OF DISEASE, HEALTH COMMISSIONER SAYS — Delphos is in the best possible condition so far as health is concerned, according to Dr. N. E. Brundage, health commissioner. Only one case of contagious disease—scarlet fever—has been reported to him, he says.

"I know of no other time when the community was so free of ill," Dr. Brundage said. "Mild weather this fall is responsible in large measure. There has not been the usual severe epidemic of colds, grippe and pneumonia," Brundage said.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

VOTERS of the city will be called upon to use common sense at the polls in municipal balloting, one week from tomorrow. We say common sense as distinguished between selfishness and prejudice. The use of this seldom used policy will come to city voters on bond issues and proposed increases in tax levies. Taxation is the great bugaboo of all communities, state or city. Because taxation is too often abused.

In the proposals on the ballots of next Tuesday, there is no sign of abuse. The city sadly needs increased revenue; must have it, or citizens individually will suffer many ills. We can't have benefits without paying for them. We can't be given proper police, fire and health protection out of the air. It must come from taxation. We voted to throw out the saloons and junk the $65,000 they paid the city for licenses. We should now vote to replace that $65,000 out of our own pockets.

The schools must expand as the city expands. The city will reach around 60,000 population before our schools can build additional housing space for the additional kiddies which come from increased population. The schools need both the bonds and the two mill levy.

These are facts, indisputable facts. The Lima News fears the voters will heedlessly, even premeditatedly follow their usual bent, of voting against increased taxation. Voters should be broad enough, fair enough, honest enough to realize that even a City Commission, beaker of all municipal ills, cannot practice government without funds. There are no funds even now to keep lighted our boulevard ornaments for which we paid $75 the post. To reiterate, we voted for a city commission over the old form. Do we expect that city commission to operate without money?

After much investigation, The Lima News believes the bond issue and increased levy are not only needed, but just. At the same time we feel they will be hopelessly defeated unless voters forget selfishness and prejudice. All we can ask is careful, studious thought. In the knowledge that the old town and our schools must go backward, if not forward.

YOUR DUTY AS A VOTER

ONLY one more week intervenes until election day. If you, man or woman, have registered as required by law affecting voters in this city it is your duty to go to the polls on Tuesday, November 7, and express your preference of the candidates for office, for United States Senator, Governor, a full complement of state officers, members of the supreme court, the court of appeals and county officers.

Likewise, it is your duty to indicate your position on measures that will be up for decision, such as bond issues, tax amendment, daylight saving, the beer and wine amendment and such other propositions as may be submitted. Those who enjoy the right of franchise and who fail to exercise it, unconsciously contribute to government by the minority.

If a goodly percentage of the citizenry who are eligible to participate in elections fail to exercise that right and duty, it follows that men are elected or defeated and that measures are accepted or rejected by a minority of the people. Thus the principle of majority rule in government is defeated by the very neglect and indifference of the people themselves.

It is not only a high privilege, but a duty as well, for every voter to express his will in the ballot on men and measures. Indifference in this essential matter is a menace to free and representative government, the form under which we live, and is a contribution to minority rather than to majority rule, as intended by the constitution.

REINCARNATION

SADORA DUNCAN says she and her husband, Serge Yessenin, loved each other in a previous existence 12,000 years ago.

"Together we played on the banks of the Nile. I was a dancing girl and he was a soldier. I recognized him when I saw him in Russia."

A beautiful belief, whether you agree with her or not. The theory of reincarnation is one of the avenues thru which humanity seeks to dodge death, the universally dreaded.

LABOR

YOU read that labor may come into power, politically, in Great Britain. If not this year, it is inevitable later.

In 1900 the British Labor Party

had a membership of only 375,931. Steady growth has made the figure pass 4,000,000.

On a population basis, this would correspond to about 10,000,000 organized labor votes in our country.

More interesting than the flight is his machine. It has big wings, looks like a dragon fly; and is a copy of the craft used by Langley 34 years ago in our country.

After wandering far, the architecture of flying machines thus gets back to copying the bird. The return is logical, for the bird is the perfect flyer. And man cannot improve on nature.

The singing and the dancing,
The laughter and the fun,
The wooing and romancing
Are over soon, and done.
The flirting and the courting,
The frolicking and play,
The revel and the sporting
Endure but for a day.

In time the blood grows colder,
In time the eyes grow dim,
And as we're waxing older
We live with waning vim.
Youth and its magic passes,
And by the frost of years

Is blighted, like the grasses,
When winter's snow appears.
Aye all the merry clamor
And all the music sweet,
The spell of youth, the glamor,
Pass on with flying feet;
The feasting and the folly
Are glories swiftly past;
But oh, they make life jolly,
The little while they last!

THAT FAT FEELING

For a long time I have wondered to the case and offer her a more attractive plaything to take her mind off from the fool notion of reducing.

The very important discovery I have made is this, that although some folks are unquestionably, egregiously and in rare cases almost irretrievably fat, there are a surprising number who are not obese at all, not by it had become a veritable epidemic, this determination on the part of girls to grow thin, and it worried me a great deal. I feared it was a decadent tendency of the sex. I'm a pessimistic person about all such matters. To my mind the women had lost their heads—that is, their hair, and having made such a screaming success in that particular mutilation they were bound and determined to sacrifice any other feminine charms they might happen to find themselves possessed of. So I made up my mind to discourage this deplorable tendency all I could; at any rate I meant to lend no hand to it. If the women were going to make animated clothesracks of themselves they needn't look to me for any counsel or aid. So for quite a spell now I have lugubrously withheld all information or advice regarding reduction from quieries whose three main dimensions have not clearly warranted an effort to reduce. I fear this practice has alienated the affections of many feminine readers or even won their animosity.

I find, now that I have made this new discovery, that I have missed my cue in dealing with most of these more or less perfect ladies who craved to make themselves imperfect. I am not repelling their appeals so coldly any more, but on the contrary I am appealing to these very misguided girls to use a better remedy than reduction is for what ails them. Nowadays when any lady of reasonably passable dimensions writes that she must reduce I endeavor to bring a bit of blarney instead of the fat feeling. Any one who is not an invalid may cure it in the privacy of home, by devoting about 18 minutes a day to an intensive study of the New Brady Symphony. And it's almost as cheap as air, just a simple request properly chaperoned by the indispensable stamped, self-addressed envelope.

My child is left handed. Is it advisable to make him use the right hand for writing and other things?—Mrs. G. P. O.

Answer—Four per cent of children are naturally left handed. Many cases of stuttering have occurred when left handed children were forced to use the right hand for writing. There is no good reason for attempting to force the change to right handedness in a left handed child and in my judgment it is injurious to the child's nervous stability to do so.

trees batimes, and rabbits busy at the cabbage. Breakfasted on an egg; why an egg on Sunday morn, must ask George. Over the coffee, reads interestedly from a letter sent me from Los Angeles. By Doc Knisely the First. Who is weary of California flowers, but long on his good game of golf. Out the window walnuts hulling themselves on the driveway, as they helplessly drop out of this year's race.

Down thru the town, after an argument with Alex McDonel. Who came over and estopped me from raking leaves. Unless I raked where his mother couldn't see. Said it was a bad precedent. Then I thot it was Sunday, and promised. Never to rake on any other day but Sunday. And I know his mother won't permit Alex to desecrate a Sunday morn.

Down to the Fisher garage to see Bill. He cooking at home, his man Friday informed me. Bot a gal, and drove eastward to Westminster, to Harrod, to Alger and thru Ada, homeward. Lunched well on cold lamb and apple sauce, with a butter scotch pie for the sweet.

In the afternoon, read long about the various murders I am following. Eight I think is the number. And very chic. The women shooters and knifers seem to cover their tracks better than the men. Then, studied The American Issue, and learned much. Picked up the Wheeler-Durand debate and became all unlearned. Anyway, I lost my vote for being out of town on registration days.

Attended vespers in a strange parish over South. No one knew me but the janitor, and he said: "Jack this isn't like the old days at the First and Last Chance." In the evening, met Abner Jones and his wife. Going to services at The Sigma. Hundreds amusement-seeking, seeming to find it. Charlie S. Schultheis, the ex-tanner, and Jim Mooney, the eminent life underwriter, strolling arm in arm out the avenue. Frank Eaton, spinning a tale about a chicken dinner he ate at Leipzig this day. A pair of youngsters fitfully playful, sought the Congregational church steps to decide when it should be.

The streets again luminouscent. So, it was a safe bet Mayor Brud could make electricity without coal. That man is a genius, albeit, he plays a rotten midiron. So, home to a cold repeat. Of peanut butter sandwiches and pickled beets. And to my noble bed.

FORD QUALIFYING FOR PRESIDENCY

May Become Formidable Factor in Race, Forbes Says

UNDECIDED AS TO PARTY

Doesn't Know Whether He's Democrat or Republican

(BY E. C. FORBES)

CHICAGO — (Special) — Here's a funny one about Ford:

Henry, they tell you in Detroit, is quite boyish, not to say childish, in many respects.

Well, annoyed by other cars passing the driver so easily and so often the father of the flivver conceived the notion of installing a racer machine in one of his cars and then sailing forth to provoke other drivers into trying to pass him.

Henry, 'tis said, acted with his disguised racer much as drivers of trotting horses do on a broad boulevard when they want to pick up a race.

His special delight is said to be to invite the owner of some very high priced car into attempting to shoot him out of the way and then to step on the gas of his own quick-as-the-wind racer and, with a merry "ha ha" like a flash of lightning pass his annoyed and astonished speed rival.

Ford's biggest ambition is to be president of the United States.

That's the emphatic declaration made by men who ought to know.

One hears on all sides that money is already going out from Detroit to all parts of the country to organize "Ford for President Clubs."

The first in receiving first attention, but the funny part of it is that Henry still doesn't know whether he is a Democrat or a Republican. He does know, however, some of the answers to the questions he tripped up on so badly during his famous "hot case in court."

When the war of the revolution was fought in this and in other ways "ha ha," Henry is qualifying for the presidency.

Of course, business men and others may laugh at and ridicule the idea of Ford seeking the presidency, seeing how grossly ignorant he is of history and everything else except the making of cheap and good motor vehicles. Nevertheless, if Henry does not change his mind and if he goes after the presidency in earnest he will unquestionably become a formidable factor.

Altho Ford's running for the presidency may strike most people as a joke, it may well turn out to be no joke.

I found the prospect of staying a night at Jackson, Mich., with some moving as I wasn't quite sure of the kind of hotel accommodations they might have there. I was a bit doubtful, however, at the excellence of the city club of Jackson, when I spent the night. Its equipment and appointments would do credit to any first class club in New York, Chicago, Boston, San Francisco or any other large city.

It was peculiarly gratifying, too, to note the friendliness and cordiality existing among the members. It was manifest that in this town the men of affairs take time to live, take time to be friendly, take time to be human.

Incidentally, I was told there is now practically no unemployment in this city and that, with the exception of one rather important industry, all the local factories are doing quite well.

"Do you see that big mill over there?" Jacob Kindelberger asked me, when I reached Kalamazoo.

"You don't know it, but you were the fellow responsible for the building of that plant."

"How so?" I asked him.

"I decided to build that mill one evening after reading an article you once wrote about John Hays Hammond, the famous engineer."

Mr. Kindelberger, who is the founder and head of the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Company, is today building a much bigger paper mill. The new mill will cost close to three million dollars. It will be the best and biggest structure of its kind in the world. Imagine, one machine alone, will cost $210,000.

Mr. Kindelberger, who is today regarded as the leading and most public spirited citizen of Kalamazoo and whose book paper, writing paper and other expensive papers are known all over the world, started handling rags in a paper mill, when he was only ten years of age. When fifteen, he could scarcely read nor write. While attending a church meeting, he suddenly conceived his ambitions. He would start schooling himself and then put himself thru college. And he did.

It is only about ten years since he started his first puny mill at Kalamazoo. Today, it turns out more dollars worth of paper than any other plant there and his new mill will triple his capacity.

Sims time ago he spent $50,000 in building and equipping a community house. I have visited many company and community club houses but I have never seen a more attractive one than this. It caters to all classes and all sizes of people, from the little children up. In view of his own early handicap thru the lack of education, Mr. Kindelberger takes special pains to afford educational facilities to his people, starting with sewing and similar classes for little girls and carpentry and other classes for young boys.

At the close of a luncheon, organized by representatives from every organization in the city a man came up to Mr. Kindelberger and remarked to him, "The way the people here brought down the house when Forbes mentioned your name is the kind of monument I would like to receive."

Like many busy men Mr. Kindelberger finds little time for civic and philanthropic activities.

If anything, most business men in the middle west strike me as being a trifle over-optimistic.

ITALY IS TAKEN BY FASCISTI

Government Handed Over to Rebel Party by King

NEW CABINET IN MAKING

Change Opposed by Monarchistic Members of Parliament

(BY HENRY WOOD)

ROME, (United Press) — Italy today had bowed to the Fascisti, the rebel party, and Benito Mussolini bused himself for naming a cabinet. The demand of Mussolini, leader of the Fascisti, that complete control of the government be handed over to his organization, was met by King Victor Emmanuel, when Mussolini was asked to form a ministry.

Back of Mussolini's demand was his army of 800,000 adherents, ready to act if the government was not handed over peacefully.

The Fascisti leader refused to accept a compromise. His invitation to form a ministry only came after he had refused point blank to participate in any cabinet headed by former Premier Salandra.

Mussolini was expected in Rome today. He has left Milan, where he has been in conference with leaders of his party. According to reliable information the new premier stopped off at Lake Garda to have an audience with Gabrielli d'Annunzio, Italy's poet laureate. This was taken to mean that the hero of Fiume may be a power in Italian politics.

OPPOSED BY PARLIAMENT

The Fascisti will rule Italy without the consent of Parliament, the majority of whose members are Socialists and bitterly opposed to the strong monarchistic tendencies of Mussolini. It is believed that parliament will be dissolved on November 7, when it convenes and that Mussolini will appeal to the country for support.

The Bourne in Rome has been closed until November 6. The Fascisti took over most of the opposition newspapers. The fort overlooking Rome, which had been seized by the nationalists, was turned over to the military after Mussolini had been invited to become premier.

The coup of the Fascisti, who had concentrated at several points in Italy and were prepared to fight their way into power, was marked with only a few disorders.

SIX KILLED

At Cremona, six Fascisti were killed by police, when the "black shirts" attempted to take over the government. One man was killed in Rome yesterday afternoon in a conflict between the Fascisti and Police. From Piacenza comes reports that two members of the military police were killed and four Fascisti wounded.

The casualties were considered very light considering the scope of the upheaval which had every aspect of a revolution.

A sensation was caused when it was learned that Mussolini plans to include socialists and populists in his cabinet.

Mussolini plans to reserve for himself the important posts of minister of foreign affairs and minister of the interior. He may hand over these portfolios to others later, but intends to retain them temporarily.

Rome today was virtually cut off from rail communication with the remainder of the country. The Fascisti, before it was assured that they would be handed the reins of government, tore up the railroad tracks, the apparent purpose being to prevent rapid transportation of troops from the provinces to Rome.

GET IN MOVIE TO BE MADE HERE!

Lima Artists Invited to Take Part in Film

Recently in the film vernacular someone coined a very capable young word. It is "sublimous," having its application to anything that approaches both the ridiculous and the sublime. It was applied to the scene which shows Charlie Murray, the noted comedian, about without grotesque make-up, proposing to beautiful Ethel Grey Terry. It is one of the scenes in Mack Sennett's six-reel comedy melodrama, "The Crossroads of New York." Just how sublimous and how ridiculous this scene really is, cannot be described on paper, for "The Crossroads of New York" really is a burlesque on melodrama that grips and thrills at the same time it convulses with laughter.

Just how "sublimous" will be the new Lima-made picture, "The Crossroads of Lima" which The News is going to produce as a "take-off" on the Sennett picture, will depend upon the Charlie Murrrays, Billy Beavans, Eddie Gribbons, Robert Calins, Herbert Standings, Dot Farley, Mildred Jones, Ethel Grey Terry and Katherine McGuire will find parts for the screen tale that will be filmed at "The Crossroads of Lima."

Those who wish to take part in this picture are invited to appear for screen tests before the casting director at the Sigma Theatre at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday. The completed picture will be shown at the Sigma Theatre in connection with "The Crossroads of New York" and later will be sent to Mack Sennett for his inspection.

Many excellent suggestions as to what shall be incorporated in this local talent picture, have been received and any that are used will be acknowledged in the picture and credit given the authors. Send in your suggestions now! Make them brief, remembering that there will not be more than a half dozen scenes in "The Crossroads of Lima" and that they must be in by Tuesday evening to be considered. Address them to the Director, "The Crossroads of Lima," care The Lima News.

SCHOOL CONTROL OVER LIBRARY

Delphos Board Plans Discussion of Problem

Following the example of Columbus, Cleveland, Lima and several other Ohio cities which have availed themselves of an act passed recently by the Ohio legislature, the Delphos library may pass under the supervision of the public school system.

This may be an issue at a meeting of the Delphos library board Tuesday night according to the president, H. R. Hick, superintendent of the public schools. The meeting was to be held last week, but was postponed.

The proposition has been freely discussed but so far favorable comment is lacking members of the library board state.

Advantages of coordinating the schools and library are said to be inestimable. Located hardly a stone's throw from Jefferson school, the library would afford innumerable benefits for research work by students, the teachers being better able to give directions because the material would be arranged under school supervision. It is pointed out.

Success in the other cities where libraries have been placed in charge of the board of education is being accepted as a criterion.

DELPHOS FREE OF DISEASE, HEALTH COMMISSIONER SAYS

Delphos is in the best possible condition so far as health is concerned, according to Dr. N. E. Brundage, health commissioner. Only one case of contagious disease—scarlet fever—has been reported to him, he says.

"I know of no other time when the community was so free of ill," said Brundage. "Mild weather this fall is responsible in large measure. There has not been the usual severe epidemic of colds, grippe and pneumonia," Brundage said.

FARMER RECOVERS

Robert Johansen, 40, farmer residing a mile west of Delphos who had two ribs in his right side broken Saturday when he fell off a wagon, is rapidly recuperating.

CLOVER LEAF SEES JOY AHEAD

Delphos Railroad Operating at Full Capacity

Old Man Business has gotten his second wind and is about to take the corner leading from Depression into Prosperity—aye at full speed. Delphos officials of the Clover Leaf railroad who have been holding a stop watch on the speeder, say he is bound to negotiate the turn with all four wheels—production, distribution service and transportation—solidly on terra firma.

Handling 40,000 tons of merchandise daily thru Delphos is a sure indication of the times, says O. M. Russell, general foreman of the Delphos shops. Twenty trains per day carry this freight.

The shop force is on the increase. The force of 80 men employed now is near normal. Every kind of work except running repair and car renovation is carried on, Russell declared.

A total of 146 engineers and fifteen firemen in charge of the trains which operate thru Delphos. Eighteen train crews are in charge between Delphos and Frankfort, Ind., and nine between Toledo and Delphos, under supervision of Train Master Drake Miller.

An average of five trainloads of autos are received each week. The company has two engines in the service of the Delphos Road. Working several acres devoted to livestock and meats and a sugar beet run between Delphos and Bluffton, Ind., is now being maintained.

The monthly payroll for engineers, trainmen and Delphos shopmen has mounted to $61,000, of which $16,000 is paid to the Delphos shop workers, according to Russell.

Business prospects for the future have a rosy hue. An era even better than the present is sure to come, the Clover Leaf official said.

DELPHOS TEACHERS RETURN FROM ASSOCIATION MEETING

Thirty-three Delphos teachers, practically the entire corps in the public system of schools, returned Sunday night from Toledo where they attended the sessions of the fifth annual convention of the Northwest Ohio Teachers' association on Friday and Saturday.

Sessions were much enjoyed and highly beneficial, affording the teachers a new vision for their work during the remainder of the 1922-23 school term and years to come, Superintendent H. R. Hicks of the Delphos schools said.

NURSES TO MARCH

Hospital Workers Will Join Armistice Day Parade

Nurses of St. Rita's and the City hospitals will be one of the outstanding features of the Armistice Day parade, November 11, J. W. Beall, chairman of the general committee, announced Monday.

They will dress in their distinctive uniforms and will add a touch of color to the drab uniforms of the American Legion members and other veterans in the parade.

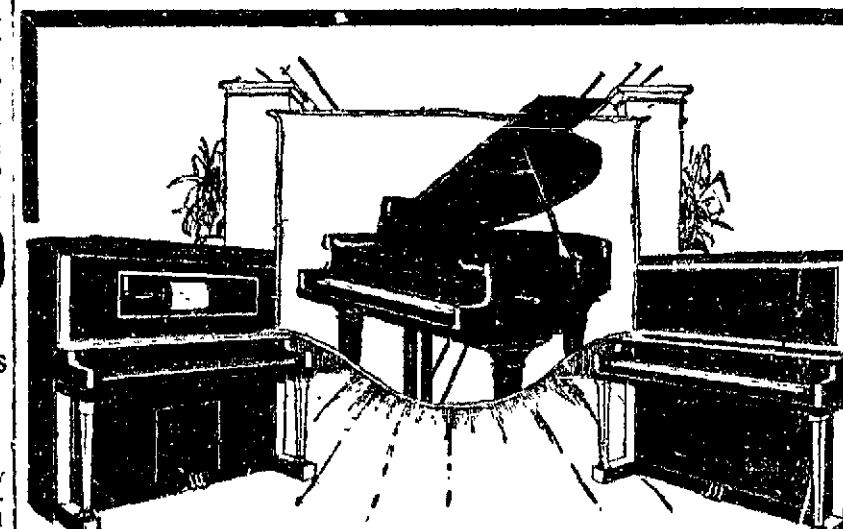

Selection of a speaker for the Memorial service has been practically completed and the result may be announced at the meeting of the committee Monday night at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

It has been decided definitely to hold the memorial service in Memorial Hall rather than in the tabernacle. It is believed that the former is better as it is nearer the center of the city.

Practically all the loose ends of the celebration will be tied together at the meeting Monday night. Immediately following it the complete program for the two days' celebration will be announced.

Schools are preparing to co-operate in the short programs planned for each school room in the city on Friday afternoon, November 10. Homer Hughes, chairman of the schools committee, says.

What They Cost

What does it cost to feed a child? Sometimes little, sometimes much. That depends on the food they get.

The premier food for a child is oats, you know. Mothers for ages have known that.

And the finest oats that grow—just the cream of fine oats—cost less than a cent a dish.

Food value is measured by calories.

In Mother's Oats, 1,000 calories cost 5 cents.

Those 1,000 calories, in the average meat dish, cost nine or ten times that.

Those are reasons for serving Mother's Oats.

They are called Mother's Oats because children love the flavor.

Insist on this quality—make the oat dish delightful—if you believe in oats.

MOTHER'S OATS

The luxury dish—large, luscious flakes. Made for mothers who want children to love oats.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

SUSIE SMART

Dear Mr. Smart:

My wife is a constant nagger and some times it nearly drives me crazy. It makes me so angry that I do, she is continually nagging. I have done everything to make her stop but she won't seem to do any good. My mother, of course, and each time she says, "Is going to be a nagger and go home to her nagging. I don't want her to do that of course. What would you advise me to do?"

NAGGING WIFE. Doubtless, you wonder what could possibly be worse. And it is with utter dismay that I tell you that one of the commonest faults men find in their wives is nagging. Still sadder than that is the fact that unfortunately, many women are guilty of this failing.

Now the best plan for you is to remain determinedly good-humored, refuse to be drawn into an argument and when your wife starts anew her faultfinding campaign immediately change the subject to something more pleasant and cheerful. It is possible that neither one of you has sufficient recreation. Take your wife out for dinner, or, occasionally, to the theatre or invite some friends to your home for an evening of cards. Anything to get away from the general and sometimes monotonous routine of every day life.

Remember few men are angels and it is possible that you may have some or even a number of faults, toward which your wife may have sufficient grounds to voice her objections. Try to overcome the faults to which she objects and your home may become a happier place. It is necessary for each of you to overlook the faults of the other if you are to make your married life a success.

TO JIM: Sorry, Jim, but I can't help you as I know of no symbol or meaning attached to the presentation of the little article.

Dear Miss Smart: I am of 27 and I am going with a young man of 21. He claims to love me but that I do not love him. I think the worst I can do is to prove my love.

JOSEPHINE: Don't do anything foolish. The fact that you accept this young man's attentions and enjoy his company should be sufficient proof that you are something for him.

RELIGIOUS CENSUS UNDER WAY

Count to Continue Until Wednesday Workers Say

Lima's religious census was started Sunday afternoon and will continue Monday and Tuesday, L. C. Brentlinger, chairman of the committee, announced Monday.

Between 500 and 600 persons worked on the count Sunday. Several districts were thoroughly canvassed. Returns will not be made by the various churches until Wednesday night, however.

Following a meeting of the committee then, a tabulation of the returns will be started. Brentlinger said. It is hoped that the results will be known by the end of the week.

Very little trouble is being experienced in obtaining answers to the few questions asked, the census takers say.

Thus an error in giving out information regarding the survey the St. Paul's Lutheran church was omitted from the list of active churches. It should take the place occupied by Christ Episcopal in the committee.

All committees of the tabernacle campaign will meet at luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday to render detailed reports as to the work accomplished, and to receive instructions.

This meeting will be in conjunction with the religious holiday, when churchmen throughout the city will gather at the tabernacle to complete the work.

It is estimated that the services of 300 men will be needed Tuesday in order to have the work finished. The first meeting in the new building will be prohibition rally Sunday evening.

CLOTHES FOR WOMEN SPELLBINDERS

(BY MARIAN HALE)

What the well-dressed spellbinder should wear is now the question before the house.

Most of us have a general working knowledge of what to wear at work, on the golf links, at tea, or at the opera, but how many of us know exactly what to wear on the platform?

"The proper dress is as important as the proper adjective for the woman who would away votes by her oratory," says Mrs. Halsey Wilson, who at present is conducting a school in Kansas City, Mo., to train Democratic women political speakers.

"They must know what to wear as well as what to say," she maintains. Here is indeed something for the woman politician to think about. Fancy gaining votes by a fluff, or losing it by a ruff!

HER SARTORIAL POLICY
Mrs. Wilson outlines her sartorial policy for the fall campaign as follows:

"Don't wear veils.
"Don't wear hats that have any dangles or ornaments that bob as you talk and distract attention from your words."
"Don't wear long, glittering earrings."

JACK, OUTWITTED, PLANS TO CATCH COUSINS IN TRAP

By ZOE BECKLEY

"How glad I am to see you," purred Cousin. "I was desolated to find you had gone from Naples without me. But I had business here, so I hurried. Now I can have the pleasure of myself supervising your visit to our offices!"

Jack made a mumbled response. He was sure now that it was Cousin, who had delayed their reaching Rome.

Anger rose in him like a sudden fever. Inspection of the Rome office under such guidance would be worse than useless.

But to gain time and think what to do, Jack permitted himself to be "guided"—and found things as vague and uninformative as he expected.

It was plain he must find a way to get his own information. "By the way, Monsieur Cousin," he said casually, "on the train I met a big manufacturer, an Englishman about to set up a large electrical plant here. Stopped at our hotel—name is Sanderson. It's your territory, so I'll leave it to you. The Eureka people don't know he's here, so you'll have first whack at him if you act quick."

"Splendid, Monsieur Duryat!" Cousin rubbed his hands. "I shall have our Rome office get him at once."

They parted with a vague appointment for dinner. Jack hurried to his hotel to telephone his friend, Jimmy Hart, to come and help with the trap he had baited for Cousin.

As he was telephoning Edna came in from her sight-seeing trip.

"Hello, Kiki—why, whatever's the matter?"

Edna turned wearily away, flinging down her hat, pushing back her hair with a sigh. Jack finished his message came swiftly to take his wife by the shoulders and peer into her eyes.

"Oh, nothing—just got the blues, that's all. I shan't go out sight-seeing alone again. If you can't come I'll send a guide's escort."

"I tried to be sensible and not notice. But it can't be done. It's tiresome—disgusting—unendurable!"

"Who dared?" Jack doubled his fists.

"Oh, what does it matter? They're a right to their point of view. I suppose. Anyhow, you can't go punching a whole continent. Let's change the subject. How did the office visit pan out?"

Jack paced the room. "Cousins beat me to it, but I've laid a trap!" The telephone shrilled, and Jack leaped to answer it.

THE FLAMING JEWEL

EPISODE NINE
The Forest and Mr. Sard

CHAPTER

When at last Jose Quintana had secured what he had really begun, his troubles really began. In his pocket he had two million dollars worth of gems, including the flaming jewel.

But he was in the middle of a wilderness riddled in by hostile men, and obliged to rely for aid on a handful of the most desperate criminals in Europe.

Another matter worried Jose Quintana: he was not only short on provisions, but what remained was precious. In the Drowned Valley, and Mike Sanchez and his men were guarding the outlet to that sinister region, excepting only the rocky and submerged trail by which he had made his exit.

Now, how to keep his loot how to get back to Europe with it, was the problem that confronted Quintana after robbing Darragh. And he determined to settle part of that question at once.

About five miles from Harrod Place, within a hundred rods of which he had held up Hal Smith, Quintana halted, seated himself on a rotten log, and waited until his men came up and gathered around him.

For a little while, in utter silence, his keen eyes traveled from one visage to the next, from Henri Picquet to Victor Georgiades, to Sanchez, to E. J. R. His intent scrutiny focused on Sard; lingered.

If there were anybody he might trust, a little way, it would be Sard. Then a polite, untroubled smile smoothed the pale, dark features of Jose Quintana.

"Bien, messieurs, the coup has been successful. Yes? Ver? Well, in turn then, in accord with our custom, I shall dispose myself to listen to your good advice."

He looked at Henri Picquet, smiled and nodded invitation to speak.

Picquet shrugged: "For me, mon capitaine, c'est simple. We have five. Therefore, divide into five parts. After that, each one for himself to make his way out."

"Victor Salazar and Henry Beck are in the Drowned Valley," interrupted Quintana.

Picquet shrugged again; Sanchez laughed, saying: "If they are there it is their misfortune. Also, we others are in a hurry."

Picquet added: "Also five shares are sufficient division."

"It is propose, then that we abandon our comrades Beck and Salazar to the rille of Mike Clinch?"

"Why not?" demanded Georgiades enthusiastically—"we shall have worse to the bottom to see the Place de l'Opera."

"The remains, also, Eddie Abrams," remarked Quintana.

Crooks never betray their attorney. Everybody expressed a willingness to have the five shares of plunder properly assessed to satisfy the law due to Mr. Abrams.

"Ver? well," nodded Quintana, "are you satisfied, messieurs, to divide and disperse?"

Sard said, heavily, that they ought to stick together until they were in New York.

Sanchez sneered, accusing Sard of wanting a bodyguard to escort him to his own home. "In this accused town," he insisted, "five of us would attract attention where one alone, with sufficient stealth, can slip thru into the open country."

"Two by two is better," said Picquet. "You, Sanchez, shall travel alone if you desire."

"Divide the gems first," growled Georgiades, "and then let each do what pleases him."

"That," nodded Quintana, "is also my opinion. It is so settle. Attention!" Two pistols were in his hands, by magic. With a slight smile he laid them on the moss beside him.

He then spread a large white handkerchief on the ground; and from his pockets, he poured out the glittering cascade. Yet, like a feeding panther, every sense remained alert to the slightest sound or movement elsewhere; and when Georgiades granted from excess emotion, Quintana's right hand held a pistol before the grunt had ceased.

It was a serious business, this division of loot: every reckless visage reflected the strain of the situation.

Quintana, both pistols in his hands, looked down at the scintillating heap of jewels.

"I estimate two and one quartre million of dollars," he said simply. "It has been agreed that I accept for me the erosite gem known as the flaming jewel. In addition, messieurs, it has been agreed that I accept for myself one part in five of the remainder."

A fierce silence reigned. Every wolfish eye was on the leader. He smiled, rested his pair of pistols on either knee.

"Is there," he asked softly, "any gentleman who shall object?"

"Who," demanded Georgiades hoarsely, "is to divide for us?"

"It is for such purpose," explained Quintana suavely, "that my friend, Emanuel Sard, has arrived. Monsieur Sard is a broker of diamonds, as all know ver? well. Therefore, it shall be our friend Sard who will divide for us what we have gained today by our industry."

The savage tension broke with a laugh at the word chosen by Quintana to express their efforts of the morning.

Sard had been standing with one fat hand flat against the trunk of a tree. Now, at a nod from Quintana, he squatted down, and, with the same hand that had been resting against the tree, he spread out the pile of jewels in a flat layer.

As he began to divide this into five parts, still using the flat of his pudgy hand, something poked him lightly in the ribs. It was the muzzle of one of Quintana's pistols.

Sard, ghastly pale, looked up. His palm, sticky with balsam gum, quivered in Quintana's grasp.

"I was going to scrape it off," he gasped. "The tree was sticky."

Quintana, with the muzzle of his pistol, detached half a dozen diamonds and rubies that clung to the gum on Mr. Sard's palm.

"Wash!" he said dryly.

Sard, sweating with fear, washed high right hand with whisky from his pocket-flask, and dried it for general inspection.

"My God," he protested tremulously, "it was accidental, gentlemen. Do you think I'd try to get away with anything like that?"

Quintana coolly showed him aside and with the barrel of his pistol he pushed the flat pile of gems into five separate heaps. Only he and Georgiades knew that a magnificent diamond had been lodged in the muzzle of his pistol. The eyes of the Greek flamed with rage at the trick, but he awaited the division before he should come to any conclusion.

Quintana coolly picked out the flaming jewel and pocketed it. Then, to each man he indicated the heap which was his portion.

A snarling wrangle instantly began, Sanchez objecting to rubies and demanding more emeralds, and Picquet complaining violently concerning the smallness of the diamonds allotted him.

Sard's trained eyes appraised every allotment. Without weighing, and lacking time and paraphernalia for expert examination, he was inclined to think the division fair enough.

Quintana got to his feet lithely. "For me," he said, "it is finished. With my friend Sard I shall now depart. Messieurs, I embrace and salute you. A bonjour in Paris—if it be God's will! Douc—au revoir, mes amis, et la bonheur! Allons! Each for himself and gar! aux flices!"

Sard, seized with a sort of still terror, regarded Quintana with enormous eyes. Torn between dismay of being left alone in the wilderness, and a very natural fear of any single companion, he did not know what to say or do.

En masse, the gang were too distrustful of one another to unite on robbing any individual. But any individual might easily rob a companion when alone with him.

"Why—why can't we all go together," he stammered. "It is safer, surer—"

"I go with Quintana and you," interrupted Georgiades, smilingly; his mind on the diamond in the muzzle of Quintana's pistol.

"I do not invite you," said Quintana. "But come if it pleases you."

"I also prefer to come with you others," growled Sanchez. "To ream alone in this filthy forest does not suit me."

Picquet shrugged his shoulders, turned on his heel in silence. They watched him moving away all alone, eastward. When he had disappeared among the trees, Quintana looked inquiringly at the others.

"Eh, bien, non alors!" snarled Georgiades suddenly. "There are too many in your troupeau, mon capitaine. Bonne chance!"

They watched him out of sight; listened to his careless trample after he was lost to view. When at length the last distant sound of his retreat had died away in the stillness, Quintana touched Sard with the point of his pistol.

"Go first," he said suavely.

"For God's sake, be a little careful of your gun—"

"I am, my dear friend. It is of you I may become careless. You will most kindly face south, and you will be kin' sufficient to start immediate. That's what I mean."

I thank you. . . . Now, my friend, follow my friend Sard ver' close. Me, I march in the rear. So we shall pass to the east of these St. Pon, then between the cross-road and 'Ghos' Lake; an' then we shall repose; an' one of us, en ditte, shall discover if the Constabulary have patrol beyon' . . . Allons! March!"

Twelve Toes was raging as usual. Twelve Toes, being a Sorcerer, had a perfect right to rage, he thought. Especially when he wasn't having his own way.

He went to his telephone and called up the Sour Old Witch who lived under a waterfall. She was a good friend of his. Maybe she would know what the trouble was.

"Tingalingaling," went the Sour Old Witch's telephone.

"Hello," she answered, taking down the receiver.

"Is that you, Raggyshank?" asked Twelve Toes, for that was her name.

"None other," answered the Sour Old Witch. "Who're you?"

"It's Twelve Toes speaking," answered Twelve Toes. "Will you tell me why I can't get the magic automobile? Can't you help?"

"I did," said the Sour Old Witch in an upset voice. "I gave Light Fingers my magic egg with a stone wall in it and it wouldn't work worth a cent. No sooner did the stone wall appear than it fell down again."

"What!" screamed Twelve Toes. "What does that mean?"

"It means," said the witch, "that the Green Wizard is more powerful than we are. He is helping Nancy and Nick."

INDEPENDENTS WIN FINAL GAME FROM DELPHOS 9 TO 2

CONTEST PLEASES

FOUR REAL FIGHTERS FROM WEST POINT

UNDEFEATED HARVARD ELEVEN GAINING STRENGTH

The Lima baseball season came to a finish, highly pleasing to local diamond fans. Sunday afternoon when the Independents trounced the Delphos American Legion team 9 to 2.

The battle, from a standpoint of fine baseball and exciting moments, did not come up to the previous encounters between the two teams. After the first inning when two independent runners scampered across the platter, Lima seemed to have the game sewed up and Berry was never seriously threatened.

"Bust 'em" Shaffer did not succeed in hitting a fly over the fence and out of the field. In fact, he is not credited with a hit on the score book, but Schaffer looked too vicious to Mels and Payne, Delphos hurlers, who gave him free transportation to first, when he appeared.

The famous independent game-breakers, Scott, Nichols, Gilhooley, Schaffer, Southworth and O'Connell were the only members of the team to connect safely. But so consistent were they that they could produce a series of hits whenever needed, getting a total of nine. Nichols, Gilhooley, Southworth and O'Connell each made two bingles and Neu connected once.

Berry allowed nine hits to the visitors, but kept them safely stopped and they did not break into the run column until the ninth inning when Patrick hit, Liable went to first on an error, Brown walked, Brandhoff hit and Miller hit. This rally netted Delphos their only runs.

The Independents were not forced to exert themselves at any stage of the game, although they were playing all the time, they took life easy.

Comedy was injected into the fray when Berry and Scott attempted to hold a hint on the sixth inning. Both raced for the ball and both stopped short and watched each other while the batter raced for first.

Berry hurled a consistent game, seeming to have the ability to make the batters out of his hand. On several occasions, when an error would permit the visitors to get on base, he would tighten up and with no batted ball he would retire him, retire Delphos without a run.

Mels, Delphos hurler, did not possess the necessary qualifications to pitch to ball players of the calibre of Southworth and Gilhooley. His ball was breaking nicely and he could grove the ball or cut the corner of the plate at will. Mels was removed in the fifth inning and Payne, who hurled the second game of the Delphos independent series, took the mound. Payne kept out of trouble, keeping Lima base runners from crossing the plate after that inning. Summary:

New Managers Contemplated

In all probability two new managers will be seen in the American League next season. It is said that changes are contemplated at Washington and Boston.

While Clyde Milan did about as well as anyone could with the material at Washington it would occasion no surprise if a change was made.

The showing of the Washington team was a distinct disappointment. The club finished fourth in 1921. Several changes were made that it seemed would certainly strengthen the club, yet it dropped to sixth last season.

When things are breaking badly in baseball now fans always arouse interest. For that reason a change in the Washington management is more than a mere possibility.

Boston finished last in the American League. Duffy, like Milan, did as well as anybody could, yet to finish last is no boast. That is why Jimmy Burke is being picked to supplant Duffy.

LIMA WOMAN TO INSTRUCT DELPHOS HOW TO CAST VOTE

Delphos voters—men as well as women—will have an opportunity Monday night to receive valuable instruction with respect to the correct way of casting their ballots at official elections.

Mrs. W. E. Crayton of Lima, who is prominently identified with the Equality club, will address the citizens at a meeting in the Commercial club headquarters, beginning at 7:30.

NEWARK—Burglars hauled the safe from H. S. Wyllie's store to Lúray, fourteen miles away, and obtained $300 when they blew it open.

FRANK DODD

FRANK DODD is one of the mainstays of the West Point back field. Aside from possessing plenty of speed, Dodd is able to do his share of line plunging when necessary. He is one of the stars of the 1922 team which looms up as a mighty strong aggregation.

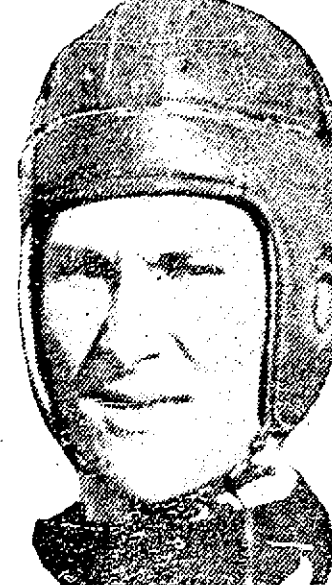

GEORGE SMYTHE

In George Smythe the West Point has the army has boasted of for years. Coach Major Daly is confident that Smythe will play an important role in the victory he is confident his team will score over Annapolis this year.

BILL WOODS

In a pinch no members of the West Point back field is called upon more often than Bill Woods. When the Army eleven lacks a few yards of the required distance the ball is invariably handed to Bill Woods. The word fight is his first name.

LARRY SMYTHE

The quarterback position at West Point is shared by Lawrence and George Smythe in the games in which he has played. Lawrence has run his team with excellent judgment and proved a strong man on the offense. He is an adept at forward passing.

WESLEYAN IS DELPHOS CAGE SENSATIONS ARE REBUILDING TEAM

DELAWARE, OHIO—Wesleyan and Wooster are leading the Ohio conference race as a result of Saturday's games.

Ohio Wesleyan is looked upon as the best in the circuit. Wittenberg considered the only real stumbling block between the Methodists and the title, was swamped at Delaware 27 to 6.

Miami, now believed the last team capable of stopping Wesleyan, will play at Delaware next Saturday. Miami is out of their running for the title, as a result of being beaten by Denison the "hope killer" 12 to 6.

Wooster will meet Denison Saturday. If Denison wins again and if Wesleyan beats Miami, it is believed the conference championship will be decided. Standings:

TAKE CASH AND AUTO
CLEVELAND—Masked bandits forced Benjamin Solomon to drive them into country, robbed him of $400 and took his automobile.

NEW YORK—Five of last week's big football games, drew 228,000 fans. Yale and the Army played to 76,000; Penn and the Navy to 50,000; Harvard and Dartmouth to 50,000; Princeton and Chicago to 32,000; and Penn State and Syracuse to 26,000.

COLEMBUS—Phil O'Dowd, Co-

Only one member of last season's St. John parochial high school created a sensation in northwestern basketball team, Delphos, which Ohio by winning 18 straight games, is available for this year's squad.

Arthur Inber, a forward, is the single center at St. John's who did not pass out via the graduation route.

King, Wreckhage, Kait and Wulffhorst are gone and their places must be filled with unseasoned material. Rev. Burkhardt, assistant pastor at St. John's, who has the team under his wing, says there are about 12 likely youngsters who cast longing eyes at the coveted positions.

No wedding out has been done yet, but another week may see the team tentatively selected. The basketball boys have been practicing for a week.

The 1922-23 team faces a gigantic task in striving to uphold the

CONTINUOUS PLAY SLOWS UP SHORTSTOP SCOTT

Is Everett Scott, star shortstop of the New York Yankees, overdoing the continuous record stunt for games played?

Unless the records err Scott has played 986 consecutive major league games without a miss. That is indeed a most remarkable performance.

Some idea of Scott's unusual record can be gleaned from the fact that a season's play in the majors consists of 154 games. Figures show us that Scott has played almost seven full seasons without missing a ball game.

Late in September of the season just closed Scott had a close call on having his string of consecutive games shattered. However, by the use of a taxicab, and the expenditure of about $40, he managed to keep his record clean.

The New York club jumped to Chicago from that city to open the final invasion of the west. Having an off day Scott spent it at his home in Indiana. His train was delayed because of engine trouble on the day of the opening game.

Discovering that he was just 25 miles from Chicago he managed to get a taxi in the small town in which the train was held up, and by a wild ride arrived in time to get in the closing innings of the game.

3 BIG GAMES ON PROGRAM

NEW YORK—Three intercollegiate football games in the east promise to enliven a program which otherwise marks somewhat of a lull in preparation for the concluding big games of the season.

Harvard will engage Florida University in one of the intercollegiate clashes while the other members of the "Big Three" will face stiff tests. Yale playing Brown while Princeton will oppose the sturdy Swarthmore eleven. The other intercollegiate games will bring Penn in combat with Alabama while Syracuse faces the strong Nebraska eleven.

Cornell will battle Columbia at Ithaca; Colgate will play Lehigh on a neutral field at Johnson City, N. Y., and the Polo grounds will witness a clash between two aggregations of stalwarts, Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson. Neither team has met defeat since 1920.

Then came the announcement that Killinger, also a college baseball star, had signed with the New York Yankees. For a month or so Killinger was the subject for hundreds of baseball stories. About eight big league clubs bid for his services.

Hugo Bezdek, former manager of the Pittsburgh Nationals, now coach of football and baseball at Penn State, made the story much better by stating most emphatically that Killinger was the best college ball player he ever saw and that he was certain to make good in the majors.

SPORT CORES

They were sitting in the stand. No best tightly to her hand. It's the best game in the land—FOOTBALL.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Harvard regulars will not be put back to work until tomorrow until "direct pointing" for the Princeton game will be started.

PHILADELPHIA—"We let the Navy run itself to death in the half and then we went in and beat them," John Heisman, Penn coach said.

NEW YORK—Thirty nine players are on the reserve list which the Brooklyn club has filed at National League headquarters. There are 15 pitchers, five catchers, 12 infielders and six outfielders on the list.

(By HENRY L. FARRELL)

NEW YORK—Harvard, undefeated and apparently gaining in power, is still about the best looking team in the east. Lafayette and Washington still remaining in the rapidly decreasing ranks of teams eligible for the mythical eastern title.

The great Naval Academy eleven crashed out of the ranks of the elite by a rather surprising defeat at the hands of the University of Pennsylvania eleven and Penn State did not gain in prestige by a scoreless tie with Syracuse.

Yale's game against the Army was of little encouragement to the Eli following. The blue eleven had to be content with a 7-7 tie, because of the lack of a punch and the absence of ammunition for their guns. Yale seems to have a long way to go if the Elis are to beat either Harvard or Princeton. Princeton's remarkable victory over the University of Chicago was hailed as a life savor by the eastern critics who were bemoaning the indication of western supremacy in Iowa's recent defeat of Yale.

The victory of the Tigers over Chicago was more than anything else the result of what they always breed in a football player at Princeton—a tremendous fighting heart.

After that exhibition in Chicago both Harvard and Yale appear to have a job of sizable proportions if they are to win from Princeton in the big three games.

FIVE VARSITY CAPTAINS IN NOTRE DAME SQUAD

One reason for the remarkable success of the Notre Dame football team is the versatility of the men with whom Coach Rockne experiments. On the squad of 1922, for instance, are found the captains of the five important athletic teams of the university.

captains the gridiron eleven. Paul Castner, fullback and American prospect because of all-around running, passing, punting and kicking ability, is captain of the baseball team.

Last year he pitched a no-hit, no-run victory over Purdue and shut out Michigan 5 to 0. He captain the hockey team for two seasons.

Gus Dech, right halfback, whose running against Rutgers was a sensation at the Polo Grounds last year in captain of the track team. He is world's champion in the 440 yard hurdles and 40-yard low hurdles and was a member of the 1920 Olympic team of the United States.

Mick Kone, candidate for the halfback, who featured the opening game with a 50-yard run through the Kalamazoo team, is basketball captain and third baseman on the baseball team.

Both Kane and Castner were approached by big league scouts at the end of the 1921 baseball season but each passed up the proposition for one more year in college.

Neil Flinn, who stepped into the right guard position when Ed Degree had a shoulder tear, captained the hockey team which won the undisputed western college title last year.

In addition to the captains other members of the squad have a few letters in other sports than football. This number will be greatly increased by the end of the year when the flock of sophomores who will football mousmours this season have had an opportunity to shine other sports.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

A year ago at this time the sporting pages of the country were filled with glowing reports of the deeds of Glen Killinger, football star at Penn State.

At the close of the season Killinger was universally picked as a member of the All-America backfield selected by every football expert in the country.

Then came the announcement that Killinger, also a college baseball star, had signed with the New York Yankees. For a month or so Killinger was the subject for hundreds of baseball stories. About eight big league clubs bid for his services.

Hugo Bezdek, former manager of the Pittsburgh Nationals, now coach of football and baseball at Penn State, made the story much better by stating most emphatically that Killinger was the best college ball player he ever saw and that he was certain to make good in the majors.

Killinger went south with the Yankees, but was sent to the minors before the season opened. He played the entire season with Jersey City in the International League.

What ailed Killinger, the college sensation, as a big leaguer? Bill Carpenter, dean of the International League umpire staff, a veteran official, who has worked in both major leagues, answers the question briefly but concisely:

"Never saw but one or two college football stars who were able to make the big league grade," says Carpenter. "Football players fight the ball in the field, due to the fact that they run at full speed at the ball and then stop with a jerk as is often necessary in football. They are seldom properly set to handle a ground ball, invariably overrunning it. At the bat they always take a healthy swing, seemingly thinking that a touchdown, or in baseball a home run was the big thing. The angle of two two games is entirely different and the football system is doomed to failure in baseball."

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

Thomas, Chicago fullback, spe three touchdowns, but Floyd Curuso, failed to kick a goal. Princeton won the game 24 to 1.

Covington, Center quarterback kicked six field goals, helping Louisville 32 to 7.

Kirk, Michigan, took an ill kick-off and ran 85 yards to touchdown. In the same game Melvin, Illinois back, punted yards.

Greeland, Detroit halfback, sent a penalty imposed on him and took a swing at Lineupman H. Green after the game. Green was cut. Detroit lost to Springfield 6 to 0.

Tufts made this only six against Wesleyan when Hug and, intercepted a pass and ran yards for a touchdown.

HAVE YOU MOVIE AMBITION? THEN READ BELOW

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)

A letter from London tells me that Norma Talmadge has the British Empire award over her for making a screen star of some of the most famous actors of the world. She is picked in a contest. More than 100,000 photographs have been submitted in the contest which was started only a few weeks ago.

Over there they think a contest to find a screen star is the most unique thing ever heard of.

Norma's idea is to fit the girl out with a Parisian wardrobe and a role in an American picture and then send her back to England to star in an all-British film. From star to fame—voilà!

That is the real romance of the American film industry. Its greatest stars leaped from obscurity overnight, as it were. Anyone with screen qualifications may do likewise.

But consider those qualifications! Here is what Norma demands in the winner of the English contest: Will to work, tireless energies, temperament, but a character strong enough to resist the temptations of prosperity.

Ambition.

Large and well-shaped eyes. Blue ones will hardly do.

A straight nose.

Lips well marked, but mouth should not be large.

Lower part of face not heavy or broad. Regular teeth.

Little under average weight, trim ankles, neat wrists, small hands and feet.

An inherent grace of action.

Consider those things, girls, if you've cut out a movie career for yourself. Maybe the stars earn their salaries after all!

Norma Talmadge. She is seeking a screen star in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

Meet Mr. Finlay and His Cinema Girls

If you have never had the opportunity to see real film folk, here's your chance at the Sigma theatre, where Bob Finlay and six attractive young ladies are appearing, in addition to the regular cinema feature.

Mr. Finlay, you know was a comedian with the Sennett company, and his act is introduced in a novel manner. Each of the young ladies in the company is from the California studios, and are very, very easy on the eyes.

One especially lovely to-be-dancer won the instant admiration of the onlookers, and a pleasing little-girl skit was also well put on.

As a whole the offering is entirely meritorious and a pleasant little diversion.

A swift, oriental photoplay is "One Arabian Night," which was called "Sunnun" a long time ago on the stage, they tell me. And from the standpoint of workmanlike ship, the film is immense! The color effects are by Prizma. It is directed by the great Lubitsch, who also plays the role of the hunchback.

"Under Oath" Has Elaine and Mahlon Hamilton

WHEN three likeable and thoroughly competent young people get together and make a picture, you may be sure that it will be worth your time and money to attend. So, while "Under Oath" is none too fresh as to story, it is a cinema play that has much to recommend it.

The story is of a girl whose father faces financial ruin, and who turns to her by marrying a certain man and the idea is repulsive to her, but she agrees to do it, for her father's sake. And then, after she has been a good little sport about it, she finds that things are going her way in spite of it, and things turn out nicely after all.

Elaine Hammerstein takes the part of the girl, as you undoubtedly EVERYONE seems to have had a pretty good time making this new little film adventure "The Ghost Breaker." Originally, you know, it was a stage play, written by Paul Dickey and Charles Goddard.

Just at this particular season, when hobgoblins and weird, scary things are in order, "The Ghost Breaker" was a happy selection on the part of the Quilna management. It has a merry, whizzing little plot, and the work of Wallace Reid in the title role, while not particularly sparkling, will meet with your approval.

No, by no means will we divulge the story, altho we will tell you that

Faurot Opera House Presents Shirley Mason

TOO BAD we see so very little of Shirley Mason. She's an earnest hard-working little girl whose pictures always please, but which appear so seldom that one nearly forgets that the child ever existed.

So, meet her in "The New Teacher," the film feature again today at the Faurot. It is hard to imagine her in the role of a school marm, but that she is, and she carries off the effect with rare ability and finesse.

Ouch! Such Pain!

It takes you right in the back! Sometimes in the arm, hip or foot. It's all due to an over-abundance of that poison, called uric acid.

The kidneys are not able to get rid of it. Such conditions you can readily overcome, and prolong life by taking the advice of Dr. Pierce, which is "keep the kidneys in good order." Avoid too much meat, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water, preferably hot water, before meals, and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking Anuric. This can be obtained at any drug store, in tablet form. Ask for Dr. Pierce's Anuric (kidney and backache remedy).

Folk everywhere in Ohio have been benefited as was Mr. Sutton, Minerva, Ohio—"I was suffering most severely from a pain in my back. I got a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and took them. It was rheumatism, and in about three or four weeks I had relief. I know, too, from the experience of others with whom I am acquainted, users of Dr. Pierce's Anuric, that they have been benefited."—Harry E. Sutton.

Send Dr. Pierce at Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., 10c for trial package of Anuric and write for free medical advice.—Adv.

"Red Pepper" at the Faurot Tuesday

THE Darling Sisters may be newcomers to the musical comedy stage, but even so their presence is felt in any of the big attractions they cast with. As a matter of fact this is the first season that a permit from the Gerry Society was not necessary for their public appearance, but now within the last two months they are old enough to follow their profession without the sanction of the law.

While these youngsters are not known to local theatre-goers, it is safe to assume that after their appearance with McIntyre and Heath at the Faurot Tuesday night the same splendid reputation they enjoy in New York, will be distinctive here.

Edgar Smith and Emily M. Young who wrote "Red Pepper" for the Messrs. Shubert, the play in which McIntyre and Heath are starring, heard the Darling Sisters sing at a private affair given by friends on Long Island. The playrights were so impressed with the youngsters' ability to harmonize, and their exceptional beauty, that they decided to write parts for them in the new play. Arrangements were completed with the elder Darlings, and now the youthful Darlings are full fledged members of what is considered to be the season's best musical comedy.

"Red Pepper" is the attraction at the Faurot tomorrow.

9 MILLIONS FOR VETERANS

This Yearly Sum to be Provided by Red Cross

GOES TO DISABLED MEN

How the Funds Are Spent Given in Detail

WASHINGTON, (United Press).—In the postwar program of the American Red Cross, four years after the end of the greatest clash of arms in all history, first call upon the services and the funds of the organization is still for administration to the ex-service men physically shattered in that conflict.

Adhering to its policy relating to the disabled veterans and their dependents, the national organization has set aside for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, a total of $3,030,692.90 in its budget, an increase of $3,668,000 over the amount spent for soldier service last year. This total will be increased by nearly 2,000 chapters engaging in service to veterans by more than $5,000,000 so that approximately $5,000,000 of Red Cross funds will be devoted this year to service the Government is not authorized to render and for which it has neither the funds nor the facilities.

"The functions of the Red Cross," says Judge John B. (Don Payne), national chairman, in his annual report, "is not to usurp the Government's responsibilities but to supplement official activity; harmoniously cooperate with official plans and methods; work out the individual in the standardized mass and his peculiar needs."

BECOMES WAITER TO STUDY MEN

MANHATTAN, Kas. — (Special) — If you want to understand folks, get a job as a waiter.

That is the advice of J. F. T. Mostert, son of a multimillionaire South African planter and manufacturer, who is a student of agriculture at Kansas State Agricultural College. Last summer he decided to get the point of the workmen, so he got a job as waiter at the college mess hall.

"Americans have a queer notion about class distinction," Mostert said after serving as a waiter. "While they are eating at your table they will make a pretense at considering you their equal and engage you in conversation, but when they meet you outside they pretend not to recognize you."

Mostert's motive in taking a job as waiter was better to learn how to direct men by having served as a workman himself. Year before last he worked as a farm hand.

the American Red Cross inaugurates its annual round-the-world Roll Call for the enrollment of the 1923 membership, there will be under treatment in Government hospitals more than 25,000 veterans. In the opinion of the Surgeon General of the Army the peak of disabled men under reconstruction will not be reached until 1926.

More than 1,000 persons, paid and volunteer, were engaged in Red Cross duty during the year in Government hospitals and district offices of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau. The Service claims and Information Service at National Headquarters handled 31,200 compensation and insurance claims, 24,560 allowance and allotment cases, and 8,700 miscellaneous claims. Since February 1919, when this service was established, it has disposed of 64,174 allotment checks payable to veterans which the postoffice department reported undelivered.

Cupid Aided By Plentiful Jobs

Better industrial conditions are aiding Dan Cupid in his efforts to make American lovers happy, Miss Jessie P. Miller, license clerk in probate court believes.

Couples who were married in the county during October show a decided increase over the number in September.

Sixty-one licenses and five banns have been issued to date, for the present month. September's record was 56 licenses and five banns.

Fifty-seven couples were licensed during October 1921 and 47 in September a year ago.

Miss Miller is of the opinion that more couples are marrying now because of the increased number of jobs that are open today.

While marriages are on the increase, divorces filed in common pleas court kept pace. More than a score of new suits have been instituted in the past month.

SHE HAD ATTACKS OF AWFUL PAIN

Lima Lady Says Plant Juice Has Relieved Her Suffering With Stomach

HAD SUFFERED 20 YEARS

The unusual power of this new herbal remedy, Plant Juice, in its effect upon the stomach was displayed once again recently when Mrs. William Taylor, who lives at 952 South Atlantic street, Lima, and who is known by hundreds of

MRS. WILLIAM TAYLOR

Lima people called on The Plant Juice Man at Hunter's drug store, 49 Public Square, and gave the following testimonial:

"For more than 20 years," said Mrs. Taylor, "I had suffered from attacks of terrible pain, due to gas in my stomach and had suffered from pains under my arms and shoulders. It seemed that everything I ate would cause a terrible spell of belching which would sometimes last for two or three hours, and would almost exhaust me. I took many different kinds of medicine but none of them gave me relief."

"One day not long ago I had one of the worst attacks I had ever had. It lasted for four hours. I asked a neighbor lady to go get the Plant Juice for me because I was so bad off I couldn't get out myself. She got me the Plant Juice and the very first dose seemed to go right to the seat of my trouble and then it wasn't long until I had relief."

"I have now taken all of the first bottle of Plant Juice and the results are wonderful for I can eat and do not suffer distress afterward—no more gas, belching or pain. I am simply a different woman and feel so fine that I want to tell everybody about Plant Juice and am glad it has come to our city."

The Plant Juice Man is at Hunter's drug store, 49 Public Square, Lima, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

Plant Juice is sold also in Lima at Hunter's drug store at Main and Wayne streets and at Argonne Drug Store, opposite Post Office.—Adv.

BRINGING UP FATHER—

SHORT SHAVINGS

Sheriff Baxter says a friend put a blue gill in a goldfish globe this summer.

Then he gradually took the water out, until a week or so ago he found the blue gill is now able to live out of water. He put it in a canary cage, and went downtown to get some bird seed in try to teach it to sing.

"I would hardly believe it possible but he can do almost anything with a fish," says the admiring sheriff.

John T. Adams, 430 S. West st. returned home late and went out to his chicken coop to see if there were any eggs.

He was rather thoughtful when he came back into the house and his wife asked him if there were any eggs. "I don't know," he said. "There was a polecat sitting on the nest and I decided not to disturb it."

A. J. Driver, W. High st. has just picked a late crop of strawberries from his thriving strawberry patch.

He and his family enjoyed a magnificent three-deck strawberry shortcake. He is quoted as saying that "The only drawback about strawberry shortcake at this season is that three helpings of the shortcake leaves one with so little appetite for new pumpkin pie."

Billy Hoover's handsome peacock, which sightseers come miles to see and which was a most impressive sight when it spread its tail, died a few days ago at one of his farms. A town doctor of that neighborhood expects the better that the beautiful bird died and died for love of its mate, which died six years ago soon after the two were brought to the farm.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. To have clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.
